Hanover zoning change clears the way for Lanthier

BY BOB DEMAREE

Hanover Town Board officially adopted zoning changes Tuesday clearing the way for Lanthier Winery in downtown Madison to expand its operations to Hanover.

On Monday, Hanover Plan Commission met to consider a zoning change request at 431 West Lagrange Road to permit operation of a small farm winery, microbrewery and artisan distillery.

As part of the discussion at a town council meeting last week, town attorney Devon Sharpe was asked to better define what operations would be permitted on the property.

"Farm Winery" means a facility in which wine products are grown and processed for commercial sales with a capacity of not more than one million gallons per year in Indiana — excluding wine shipped to an out-of-state address as regulated and defined by the State of Indiana. The development may also include other uses such as a retail shop, standard restaurant, bar or live entertainment.

"Microbrewery (brew-pub)" means a facility for the production and packaging of malt beverages of low alcoholic content for distribution, retail, or wholesale, on or off premise, with a capacity of not more than 15,000 barrels per year as regulated by the State of Indiana. The development may also include other uses such as a standard restaurant, bar or live entertainment. Microbreweries may also be known as a brewpub.

New Encore Theatre group to stage Barefoot this weekend

BY BOB DEMAREE

A new theater group in Madison will open first production this weekend when the comedy "Barefoot in the Park" is staged at Opal Sherman Auditorium at Madison Consolidated High School.

The group, Encore Theatre of Madison formed during the summer, provides an opportunity for MCHS theater alumni and community members to be involved in theater locally.

Alec Lichlyter, a 2005 Madison graduate, is leading Encore, an idea that came together as he and Kamra Smith, a 2009 Madison graduate, dreamed of creating opportunities for Madison Consolidated School alumni to participate in theatre.

"This gets the alumni back to the glory days of Madison theater and also allows the community to get involved," said Lichlyter.

The theater group organized in July and by August was planning for "Barefoot in the Park," a Neil Simon play that premiered on Broadway in 1963. "What we wanted to do was something with a small cast, a simple set and a great story, and that's why we decided on this," said Lichlyter, noting that once organized they wanted to do a production as quickly as possible to get the word out about the new theater group.

"Barefoot in the Park" will be performed at Opal Sherman Auditorium, 743 Clifty Drive, on Friday and Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $5 students K-12 and only available at the door, where cash or credit card will be accepted. Adult tickets for the Sunday matinée at $10.

Holly Magrath (left) as Ethel Banks, Patrick McGrath as Victor Velasco and Thomas Cifranik (right) as Paul Bratter, go through a dress rehearsal for "Barefoot in the Park." Encore Theatre of Madison will stage the play Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Opal Sherman Auditorium.

Encore Theatre is characterized as an outreach of Madison Fine Arts Academy, which provided funding to help cover expenses for putting on the play. "The profits go back to them, so it's also a fundraiser for them. This is a chance for the alumni to be back at Opal Sherman putting on a show while raising money for the Fine Arts Academy," Lichlyter said.

"Barefoot in the Park" is the story of a newlywed couple, Corie and Paul Bratter, who move into an apartment in New York City, both with their differences — Corie who is more carefree and Paul who is more strait-laced.

"They're learning what it means when they're very opposite," said Lichlyter. Corie wants Paul to become more easy-going, even suggesting they run "barefoot in the park."

Lichlyter said Corrie and Paul are figuring out what marriage is about," and the process "leads them on wild adventures" as they work through their lives together. "It has high-hearted comedic moments that tackle big things," he said.

Sydney Randall will perform the role of Corrie while Thomas Cifranik will play Paul. Other actors are Patrick Magrath as Victor Velasco, Holly Magrath as Ethel Banks and Lichlyter as Harry Pepper. Tiffany Lichlyter is the stage manager and technical director while Melanie Torline is the art director and Shannon Bell is in charge of costumes. Three MCHS students are also helping with the production — Isa James and Anneliese Crumley with lighting and Owen Schmidt with sound.

Lichlyter said "Barefoot in the Park" will serve as a "dress rehearsal for future productions. We wanted to get our feet wet," and he's hoping the theater group will grow.

"We're eager for everyone to come support our group," he said.

Hip Hop artist making Madison his new home

CHARLIE ROHLFING
CHARLIE'S BEAT

When I met with Kerry Owens he'd been living in Madison for exactly two days. The 31-year-old Rushville native had been living in Indy for most of the last decade, but his parents moved here about eight years ago and he's been coming for regular visits.

"Dad is a chef and he cooks for the Sigma Chi fraternity out at Hanover. I've been coming on weekends, and the music culture here in Madison has really been intriguing me," relates Kerry. "I've been totally immersed in the hip hop scene up in Indy, but I'm ready for a change. Madison seemed like a natural choice.

"It's exciting to be here. I've already talked to Brent Turner and Drew Eades from Unbroken Circle Productions about opportunities to perform here. I've talked to Jimmy Davis. Everybody has been so supportive and encouraging so far."

I had the opportunity to see Kerry in action last Tuesday at open mic night at The Taproom. It was one of the more unconventional performances I've ever seen. Jimmy Davis was there with Danny Cook on bass and Kerry Mefford on drums. He just asked them to take off on any jam they wanted and he'd jump in over top with improvised lyrics.

So off they went on a hot and funky groove, and here comes Kerry, bopping to the beat and stepping off the Taproom stage with microphone in hand, freestyling lyrics and scatting a tune. It was very cool, I must say. Next Jimmy and the guys spun a reggae jam, and Kerry joined right in. No rehearsal. No sheet music. No concept of where it might go. Very improvisational and fun.

"I've always focused more on vocals, less on playing an instrument," says Kerry. "I have picked up some guitar along the way, pretty much self-taught. But now I'm ready to break out of the hip hop mold and get back to the style of music I've always wanted to do.

"I guess if you had to label the style I'm going for it would be Americana or Roots

Sister is dating a felon

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

Dear Annie: My mother died at the age of 67 from COVID-19 in January. My stepfather wanted to wait a year to have the memorial so everyone could attend. Since my mother's death, my stepfather has remarried. Yup, remarried. And now his new wife has moved into the house.

My stepfather is now saying everything in the house is his and is being resistant about allowing me or my brothers into the house to get my mother's belongings that are sentimental to us. My mom, unfortunately, did not have a will. What do we do? — Remarried after Death

Dear Remarried: First, I'm so very sorry for the loss of your mother. Sixty-seven is too young, and I'm sure you miss her every day. Try to be happy that your stepfather has found another companion; everybody grieves at their own pace.

Inheritance laws vary state by state, so the best thing you can do is consult a lawyer. I would give your stepfather the heads-up that you are doing this; it might persuade him to let you into the house and take items of sentimental value before getting lawyers involved.

And remember: No matter who lives in that house, no one will ever replace your mother.

Dear Annie: My sister has recently become involved with an old high school boyfriend. Our family had issues with him 30 years ago. He now lives across the country from her. Recently, she went out to visit with him for a week, and she took her 21-year-old daughter and daughter's boyfriend with her.

We did some checking before she left. He was convicted of rape and assault about 10 years ago and served five years of a 16-year sentence. I confronted her, and she says she has known about it for years. I found some jailhouse letters from him when I cleaned her car.

She has a 21-year-old daughter and a 16-year-old daughter. They both feel that if he makes her happy, so be it. They both know about his criminal record.

The family has told her he will not be allowed around any of us for any family events. She is hinting he might move around here. She is hoping for a long-term relationship with him. She has no self-confidence. She's shy. She says he's a changed man and that he was set up and drunk when the crimes were committed. We are really worried about this. He has abused other women, according to trial records. Help. — Terrified for Sister's Safety

Dear Terrified: Your concerns are valid. Regardless of whether he was "set up" or "drunk," he is a convicted criminal with a history of violence against women. This, combined with your family's disapproval of him 30 years ago, is evidence enough that the man he used to be is not worthy of welcoming into your family.

And from your letter, it sounds like he's not much better today. The fact that he's giving your sister excuses shows he hasn't owned up to the pain he's caused. A second chance is already a big ask, and your sister shouldn't even consider it unless he takes accountability and proves he's taking steps to becoming a new, better man.

You can also explain to your sister that dating a felon could jeopardize the custody she has of her 16-year-old daughter, assuming the father is still in the picture.

Remember, forgiveness is one of the most powerful gifts we can offer — but it would be foolish to give it to someone who hasn't earned it.

I love her as a mother — not as a wife

Dear Annie: I have a child with a woman who is 20 years younger than me. Having a child was not planned. I'm grateful for our child, but I'm not in love with her mother. I've tried to explain to her that I love her for the mother she is but that I'm not in love with her.

She found old letters in my closet from an ex that I was in love with over six years ago, and she wonders why I can't love her the way I did my ex. I tried explaining to her that she isn't my ex and what we have is completely different from that relationship.

Shortly after our daughter's birth, things got rough between us, and she took my daughter and everything I'd bought for her. I did not get to see her for two months. Through a lot of court and financial upsets, I finally got to see my daughter. We now live together, just so that I can see my daughter and know that she's taken care of — but I'm still not in love with her mother, nor do I trust her.

ANNIE LANE
DEAR ANNIE

How do you get someone to understand you're not in love with them and it's best to go our separate ways co-parenting our child than to live in a distrustful, jealousy-filled environment? Avoiding each other isn't a healthy environment in which to raise our daughter. — Loving Father, Concerned for his Daughter's Well-Being

Dear Loving Father: Everyone comes into our life for a reason. Some are meant to stay forever. Some are meant to teach us something. Some are meant to offer companionship or love or guidance.

You share a child with this woman, and that is something very special. But it doesn't mean she is a good match as your life partner and vice versa. If she doesn't understand that message, it's best to speak with a couples therapist or mediator to help you two communicate.

And do let her know that although she is not the love of your life, she has given you something no one else can: your daughter.

HOT TIP OF THE WEEK

Thursday night, Oct. 7, is kind of a red-letter date for live music. Konrad Wert, who plays under the stage name Possessed by Paul James, will be bringing his totally unique and entertaining show to Red Bicycle Hall. Paul James was his grandfather, and he often performs like a man possessed! His new album "As We Go Wandering" was recently charting No. 5 on Billboard's Bluegrass Albums. Also on Thursday at The Taproom will be a special appearance by a band out of Minnesota called Good Morning Bedlam. Quoting from their band bio, "Their shows are known for their contagious energy, with members careening about the stage, jumping and dancing with a wild playfulness." Sounds good to me! And don't forget, Saturday is Soup Stew Chili Brew, with live music starting at 11 a.m. on three stages and going all day.

UPCOMING SHOW ALERT

Mark your calendar (and get your tickets while you still can) for Wayne "The Train" Hancock, coming to Red Bicycle Hall next Friday, Oct. 15. The dude is a legend! Anthony Ray Wright will be opening for him. Charlie Rohlfing is a retired advertising man and partner in The Red Bicycle Hall music venue. Look for his distinctive fedora bobbing above the crowd, anywhere live local music is happening.

"This is a community festival for all ages," said Emilee Roberts, executive director of the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce. "It encompasses so many pieces of Madison and the community. I'm real excited."

Robert said the festival began as "a small food contest to bring people to the downtown historic district" but has become one of the city's biggest one-day events. "It started from that, and it continues to grow."

She said people love the food and music plus there are events for all ages.

"It has something for everybody and their family," Roberts said. "And it's fall weather, which is always beautiful and fun to be out in."

New this year is the Adult Fun Zone, which will be located on Mulberry Street with a cornhole competition and Kan Jam, the flying disc game, plus a huge Jenga set.

The Kids Zone with bouncy houses is also back and will be located on the north side of Main Street from Poplar Street. Kids Zone wristbands will cost $10. "They can get on the inflatables as much as they want to, and there will also a coloring station there, too," said Roberts.

Live music will be performed throughout the day on three different stages.

At Main and West streets in front of City Hall, Jimmy Davis and Bill Lancton perform from 11 a.m.-12:15 p.m., Two Buck Chuck from 12:45 p.m.-1:30 p.m., Rusty Bladen from 2-3 p.m., and Lindsey Flannery from 3:30-4:30 p.m.

Across from the Red Bicycle Hall at 125 East Main Street, Charlie Rohlfing will perform from 11:15 a.m.-12:30 p.m., Kade Puckett from 1-2:15 p.m., and Aaron and Wesley Smith of Brother Smith from 2:45-4 p.m.

In front of the Comfort Station at 221 West Main Street, Robby Cox will perform from 11:30 a.m.-12:45 p.m., Joe Perkinson and Dean Crafton from 1:15-2:30 p.m., and Logan Rush from 3-4 p.m.

But the real draw for the festival is the food and drink as local and regional chefs serve up their best recipes of soups, stews, chili and drinks in sample sizes that allow visitors to taste sweet, savory and spicy delights up and down Main Street.

Food tickets cost $1 for soups, stews and chilies sold at each booth at 2 tickets for 4 ounces, 3 tickets for 6 ounces and 4 tickets for 8 ounces. Brews can include any type of drink — from lemonade, to milk shake, beer or anything else — with the number of tickets depending on the price vendors charge.

Judges will present awards for the best of festival in four categories: Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew.

The event serves as a fundraiser for the Chamber along with the food vendors — many of whom are local charities or represent charities — who receive a percentage of the ticket sales.

"It's a community fundraiser," said Roberts.

In addition to the event, the Chamber is also selling Soup, Stew, Chili and Brew cookbooks with recipes from past participants of the event. Roberts said the cookbooks, available for $15, were created last year when the Chamber ended up holding a virtual event due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Roberts said the Chamber is thrilled to once again host the event live. "We're really excited and hoping people come out, and have fun, listen to good music, and have good food."

She noted the event is also an opportunity to support local and businesses that are participating by taking the opportunity to shop downtown while attending the festival.

Grote leads Madison to win over Scottsburg

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

SCOTTSBURG — It might not have been the blowout Madison fans were expecting, but it was a dominating win nonetheless as the Cubs opened the Class 2A Boys Soccer Sectional Tournament with a 6-1 win over host Scottsburg on Tuesday night.

Henry Grote recorded a hat trick with three goals, Ramon Alvarado Paz introduced himself with two goals and an assist, Ian Eirikkson had a goal and Sonny Koren had two assists as Madison pulled away to win a battle between the sectional's most recent champions.

Despite the lopsided score, it was easy to see why many thought Madison should have won by even more, especially considering the Cubs had unleashed a 9-0 mercy rule-shortened victory over Warriors last month. But while Madison coach Kyle Bipes was a little dismayed at his team's lack of focus at times, he was philosophical about the win.

"We came in and scored three early goals and then they have a collision and we're down for 10 to 15 minutes and I think that really set us back. ... But we still came out with a win, so I'm not too upset."

— Kyle Bipes
Madison soccer coach

"Sectionals is always a different time because everybody always comes with a little more energy, a little more passion and it showed tonight," Bipes said. "We came in and scored three early goals and then they have a collision and we're down for 10 to 15 minutes and I think that really set us back. It really killed our momentum. But we still came out with a win, so I'm not too upset."

Rebels roll over Rising Sun, 6-0

BY JORDAN BEAR

OSGOOD — Southwestern boys soccer moved one step closer to reaching its third consecutive sectional championship game with a 6-0 win over Rising Sun in the quarterfinals of Class A Sectional 45 at Jac-Cen-Del on Tuesday.

The Rebels, quite familiar with the Shiners after playing them twice during the regular season, had won their first meeting 4-3 in Rising Sun before posting a 4-1 victory 4-1 in the regular season finale this past Friday.

Neither team was able to get much going offensively early in the first half on Tuesday after sloppy play kept the ball at midfield most of the time. However, the Rebels finally broke through in the 19th minute when Merrick Mansaray collected a pass in front of the goal and fired it into the corner for a 1-0 Rebels lead.

Southwestern didn't stop there and doubled its cushion in the 33rd minute when Joe Drossart took advantage of a Rising Sun defensive miscue to give the Rebels a 2-0 lead going into halftime.

Southwestern then dominated the second half, scoring goals in bunches, as Brandon Smith scored two goals, and Colton Cloud and Bryce Hatton scored a goal each as the Rebels cruised to the 6-0 victory to advance in the tournament.

David Campbell

Southwestern's Joe Drossart leaps into the arms of teammate Merrick Mansaray (21) as a dejected Brogan Radcliff of Rising Sun (26) walks away during the Rebels' 6-0 sectional win on Tuesday in Osgood.

Southwestern coach Seth Shields was more than thrilled with his team's performance.

"In these last few games here at the end of the season we have been playing some really good soccer," Shields said. "My team is just starting to figure it out on the field and they are working well together. We've grabbed some wins and we dropped a couple games as well, but in every game we are getting better and better and there is no better time to be playing your best soccer than in the postseason."

"We knew coming in that (Kendall) Montgomery was their go-to player. If you take him out of the game, you're forcing the rest of the team to then have to play together and we simply were a more skilled team. So once we took Montgomery out of the game, we were able to take control of the game."

— Seth Shields
Southwestern soccer coach

One of the big tasks Southwestern had to accomplish was slowing down Shiner star forward Kendall Montgomery, which the Rebels did. After Mansaray scored his goal, he returned to defense and never left Montgomery's side and took him out of the game.

"We knew coming in that Montgomery was their go-to player," Shields said. "If you take him out of the game, you're forcing the rest of the team to then have to play together and we simply were a more skilled team. So

CLASS 1A BOYS SOCCER

Understaffed Hilltoppers battle No. 11 South Ripley in defeat

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

OSGOOD — Down several starters and a bench thinned by COVID quarantines, Shawe soccer put together one of its best efforts of the season in a 4-2 loss to 11th-ranked South Ripley in the opening round of the Class 2A Sectional Tournament at Jac-Cen-Del on Monday.

Despite the losses, the Hilltoppers battled the Raiders to the final whistle to give first-year coach Patrick Bear no reason to complain.

"We're missing a lot of key pieces and you know when the machine has missing pieces, it doesn't work too well and for what we had, we gave great effort," Bear said. "I didn't know what to expect with our freshman goalie but he played well in his first full game in sectionals against the undefeated conference champions. One mistake that costs us. I'll take it."

Shawe came out determined to take the action right to the highly-touted Raiders and it paid off in an early goal when Christian Whitham launched a perfect shot from 25 yards out that found the net just out of the reach of keeper Brystan Tingle 10 minutes into the contest.

But South Ripley (13-0-4) wasn't going to be denied for long and a flurry of goals, all off of set plays over a five-minute span, was the difference in the game.

Zach Gentile, the Raiders' record-setting goal scorer, tied the game in the 20th minute when he headed-in a throw-in in front of the goal.

Two minutes later, Gavin Binion scored on a perfect throw-in from Ryan Miller to put the Raiders ahead 2-1.

Gentile then added a second goal in the 25th minute, this time off a corner kick by Brayden Dilk.

The score remained 3-1 until early in the second half when Shawe inched closer on a dandy of a set play.

Whitham played in a corner kick with a short pass to Johan Betancourth, who sent the ball back to Whitham on a give and go. Whitham's kick into the box was then fielded by Jacob Hertz, who headed the ball into the net for his 21st goal of the season.

Shawe had nearly an entire half remaining to get the equalizer but Gentile ruined those plans when he took advantage of a miscue by the Hilltopper defense and easily put the ball into the net in the 59th minute for his third goal of the game and a two goal cushion.

Facing that deficit for the second time was too much for Shawe to overcome and the Hilltoppers were unable to break through.

"We did a really good job of shutting them down twice this season but a team like that, they're so athletic, you can't stop for a second," Bear said. "That's what we did. We let off the gas a little bit and they broke through. But our guys did a good job of coming back after that and other than the one, played really well. I know that's wishful thinking, but if we had everybody I fully believe we win that game."

Shots were virtually even between the two teams with South Ripley holding an 18-17 overall lead in shots and Shawe leading 11-10 in shots on goal. Both teams had five corner kicks and Ripley was whistled 13 times to Shawe's 12 fouls.

Shawe freshman goalie Dylan Fitzpatrick had six saves and Tingle had eight for the Raiders.

South Ripley advanced to the semifinals on Wednesday where it faced 20th-ranked Switzerland County in a battle of top 20 programs.

Shawe ends the season with a 9-5-2 record and, despite the loss, Bear was pleased with the season.

"Five more wins than last year, plus two ties against South Ripley, and my whole schtick is changing the mentality of the kids and not accepting defeat," Bear said. "Looking at them after the game, they have done that. It's tough to tell the seniors goodbye but it was a good season."

Shawe's Jack Grote (in air) kicks away the ball away from South Ripley's Reese Heffelmire (9) during Monday's sectional opener in Osgood. The Hilltoppers closed out their season with a 4-2 loss to the No. 11 Raiders.

Milestone for Wallace as he earns 1st NASCAR victory in Talladega

BY JENNA FRYER
AP AUTO RACING WRITER

TALLADEGA, Ala. — The hard part wasn't dodging his way around a crash and then driving to the front of the field at Talladega Superspeedway. That was just instinct for Bubba Wallace.

The challenge was the 45 minutes after Wallace took the lead, when the sky opened and he anxiously sat in the rain — hoping, wishing, praying — that NASCAR would call off Monday's rescheduled race and declare him the winner.

With a crowd gathered behind his pit stand chanting its support — one man told his 6-year-old son, clad in a Wallace shirt and jumping up and down along the fence, that he was "witnessing history" — NASCAR pulled the plug and Wallace became just the second Black driver to win a race at the Cup Series level.

"Got some credibility to my name now," said Wallace, a first-time Cup winner in his 143 starts. "I'm just like, 'Finally, I'm a winner and I'm a winner in the Cup level,' and it's just like 'Hell yeah!' It was a huge weight lifted off my shoulders."

This was so much more than just a first win.

Wallace is the first Black driver to win at the top level of the elite stock car series since Wendell Scott in 1963, a race where he wasn't declared the victor until long after Buck Baker had already been rewarded the trophy. NASCAR at last presented Scott's family with his trophy from that race two months ago.

"You can't swim standing on the Bank!!," tweeted Warrick Scott Sr., who is Scott's grandson. "RIP Wendell Scott. Congratulations @bubbawallace!!" A second post showed his grandfather leaning against a car and read: "PaPa was there the whole time chilling in the rain."

The Wallace victory earned praise from rapper Big Sean, the University of Tennessee football team and Bill Lester, a Black driver who raced intermittently in NASCAR from 1999 through a Trucks Series start this season, among others.

"Finally, it's official, you've done it!" Lester posted. "So proud of you and what you've accomplished. Your win moves the @NASCAR needle forward on so many fronts. Glad I was a witness."

The race was spotlighted on NBC's "Nightly News" at the top of Monday's broadcast, illustrating how culturally important Wallace's win was for NASCAR, a predominately white sport with deep Southern roots and a longtime embrace of Confederate symbols. As much as Wallace wanted the moment to be solely about his first career win, he couldn't ignore the significance.

"It's definitely been tough going to some of the tracks this year, we get some of the most boos now," Wallace said. "Everybody says as long as they're making noise that's fine, but you know, I get booed for different reasons and that's the tough thing to swallow. I appreciate all those who were there doing the rain dance with us, pulling for us, supporting me my whole career, but especially those who have supported me with everything that's gone on the last 15-16 months."

In June 2020 at Talladega, NASCAR discovered a noose in the garage stall assigned to Wallace. The finding came just a week after NASCAR had banned the Confederate flag at its events at Wallace's urging.

The FBI investigated and found that the noose was tied at the end of the garage door pull and had been there for months, meaning Wallace was not a victim of a hate crime. Still, the series rallied around him and stood in solidarity with Wallace at the front of the grid before the race.

The flag ban continues to be an issue at Talladega, where a convoy of vehicles has paraded up and down Speedway Boulevard outside the main entrance of the speedway during all four race weekends since NASCAR announced the ban. The convoy was back this weekend and included one car pulling a trailer that contained a Civil War-era cannon.

Wallace has called the noose incident a low point and he's been subjected to online harassment that last year even included a tweet from then-President Donald Trump that falsely accused Wallace of making up the noose. Although Wallace never saw the noose and was only told about it by NASCAR President Steve Phelps after the FBI had been summoned to investigate, he's been accused by many in the public of orchestrating a hoax.

When Monday's race was halted with Wallace as the leader, social media was ablaze with comments attacking the 27-year-old Alabama native whose birthday is later this week.

"They just are haters. That's all you can really say about it," said Denny Hamlin, Wallace's team co-owner and a fellow driver. "I try to say to him, 'Don't get your motivation trying to prove haters wrong. Instead get your motivation from trying to do the people that support you proud.'

"That's where the motivation is going to come from, is the people that are going to support you through the good times and the bad times," Hamlin said.

Wallace had driven through a crash and to the front of the field five laps before the second rain stoppage of the race. When he surged to the front, and with the entire field realizing that rain could halt the race at any time, runner-up Brad Keselowski recognized Wallace had likely just won the race with his pass.

"I was thinking, 'Oh, geez. I wish I would have made that move,' " Keselowski said. "(His) was the right move at the right time."

NASCAR tried to dry the track for nearly 45 minutes, but called things off as sunset approached and the rain showed no sign of ceasing.

Wallace had been waiting atop his pit stand and celebrated wildly with his crew when the decision came. Wallace is in his first season driving for 23X1 Racing, a team owned by both Hamlin and Michael Jordan.

Reds see bright spots in 2021 despite late-season fade

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — Despite a slow start and a rash of injuries, the Cincinnati Reds stayed within striking range of the playoffs for most of the summer. But it couldn't last.

While the St. Louis Cardinals surged, the Reds lost eight consecutive series from Aug. 24 to Sept. 19, going 8-16 in that stretch, and were elbowed out of the wildcard derby. They finished 83-79 in the NL Central, behind the Brewers and Cardinals, who claimed the second wildcard.

"It didn't end like we wanted to," general manager Nick Krall said. "It's definitely disappointing. There are some moral victories out of this, but at the same time it's not what we want to do."

There were developments that bode well for the near future:

Cincinnati recorded its first winning season in a full 162-game campaign since 2014. (They were 31-29 in pandemic-shortened 2020).

First-baseman Joey Votto, who turned 38 in September, had one of the best seasons of his career. He was one three Reds to hit 30-plus home runs, which hasn't happened since 2007.

Rookie second baseman Jonathan India — relegated to the team's alternate site all last season — hit .269 with 21 homers and as a leadoff man drew comparisons to Pete Rose. His .376 on-base percentage was among the top 10 in the National League.

Kyle Farmer, pushed out of the infield mix initially, became a reliable starting shortstop and hit a career-high 16 home runs.

Another rookie, Tyler Stephenson, teamed with Tucker Barnhart to give Cincinnati one of the best catching tandems in the majors.

The Reds' team batting average improved to .249 — eighth best in the majors — from a league-worst .212 in 2020.

"To get through a major league season and have the amount of success that individual players on our team had, to put ourselves in the position that we did, every single guy on our team should be very proud of that," manager David Bell said. "We have a lot to to look forward to, a lot to build on."

VOTTO STILL BANGS

A T-shirt that became popular in Cincinnati during the summer proclaimed: "Joey Votto Still Bangs"

Votto made adjustments last season to hit for more power, and it certainly worked.

His 36 homers — including a three-run shot in the season finale Sunday — tied for the second-highest total of his career. When he slammed 37 in 2010, he was on his way to becoming NL MVP.

He finished the 2021 season in the top 10 in the majors in homers, RBIs, on-base percentage, slugging percentage and OPS.

Votto's improbable resurgence came after he missed most of spring training with COVID-19 and then missed a month with a broken thumb.

"We have to get better, and that's the only way we're going to get to that 90-win threshold and get a playoff berth," Votto said. "A lot of people bring up how the Cardinals won 17 straight. It's hard to make it to the playoffs if you win 83, 84 or 85 games."

Burrow says he, Bengals improving

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The unflappable second-year quarterback, playing on a surgically repaired left knee, led the Bengals (3-1) to scores on all four second-half drives after falling behind 14-0 at halftime to the Jacksonville Jaguars.

CINCINNATI — After rallying the Bengals to a late win over the Jaguars, Cincinnati quarterback Joe Burrow said with matter-of-fact confidence that he is getting better every week.

The stats and his dauntless performances under pressure seem to suggest that it's not just talk.

The unflappable second-year quarterback, playing on a surgically repaired left knee, led the Bengals (3-1) to scores on all four second-half drives after falling behind 14-0 at halftime to the Jacksonville Jaguars.

Burrow ended up throwing for a season-best 348 yards and two touchdowns in the 24-21 win Thursday night. He completed 25 of 32 attempts (78.1%) and is averaging nearly a 73% completion rate through four games. His 10.9 yards per completion against the Jaguars weere a season best.

Although Tee Higgins, last year's leading receiver, has been out with an injury, Burrow has looked to rookie Ja'Marr Chase, veteran Tyler Boyd and tight end C.J. Uzomah, who caught both of his touchdown passes on Thursday.

The last Uzomah connection was one of the most important and demonstrated Burrow's ability to adjust. On second-and-13 at the Jacksonville 46, Burrow saw a lane and checked to a screen pass to Uzomah, who with blockers in front of him rumbled for a 25-yard gain. That got Evan McPherson in range for the winning field goal.

"You guys have heard me talking about having the playbook in the back of my head and seeing looks I can take advantage of. That comes with experience," Burrow said.

"You always wants to start strong — we're 3-1, we're in a good spot," he said. "Obviously, we had the one setback where we didn't play very well in Chicago, but we played pretty well the other three games. We're just going to keep building on it. I'm excited to have a bye weekend. It's going to be fun to watch some football, and kind of relax and get a head start on Green Bay."

WHAT'S WORKING

Pass protection for Burrow has come around since the first two games of the season in which he was sacked a total of nine times. Burrow was unscathed in last Sunday's 24-10 win over the Steelers and was sacked by the Jags just once Thursday night.

"It's been really fun to see," coach Zac Taylor said.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

On the other hand, the ground game is kind of stuck in the mud. The offensive line couldn't break running back Joe Mixon free in the first half against Jacksonville, and eventually the Bengals put in extra linemen to make some space for him. He finished with 67 yards and hasn't had a 100-yard effort since the Week 1 win over the Vikings.

STOCK UP

LB Logan Wilson has been everywhere. His three interceptions are tied for the league lead. He led the Bengals with 10 total tackles against Jacksonville. Along with Larry Ogunjobi, he stopped quarterback Trevor Lawrence short on a keeper on fourth down and the ball inside the Bengals 1 at the end of the first half. It was a turning point in the game.

STOCK DOWN

Higgins missed another game with a shoulder injury, though it opened up things more for Chase, Boyd and especially Uzomah. Trenton Irwin even picked up his first catch of the season, a 25-yarder that helped set up the first Cincinnati score. ... Cincinnati's defensive line is still working on a consistent pass rush. Lawrence was sacked once and hit just two other times.

INJURIES

Mixon limped off the field Thursday night with an ankle injury and is considered day to day. Same with Higgins, S Jessie Bates (neck), Chidobe Awuzie (groin) and G Xavier Su'a-Filo (knee).

KEY NUMBER

9 — Burrow touchdown passes through four games. Burrow had six through four games in 2020.

NEXT STEPS

The Bengals have some extra time to prepare for Aaron Rodgers and the Packers, who visit Paul Brown Stadium a week from Sunday. They can use the extra days to get some of their key players healthy again.

Players-only meeting helped Colts put season back on track

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Colts defensive end Kemoko Turay was flustered and flummoxed after three straight losses.

So last week, Turay suggested to 2020 All-Pro defensive tackle DeForest Buckner that he call a players-only meeting.

Buckner, two-time All-Pro linebacker Darius Leonard and defensive end Al-Quadin Muhammad sent a message to their teammates: Do your job, stay focused and sacrifice a little more. That approach led to more more physical practices and a potentially season-changing victory at Miami.

"It bothered me," Turay said. "Watching Buck the first two weeks, being out there just pressuring the quarterback, we couldn't just leave him hanging and stuff like that. So it bothered me last week, and we needed that talk."

The last time Turay remembered having "that talk" came in 2018 when the Colts were 1-5 in coach Frank Reich's first season. They responded by winning nine of their final 10 games to make the playoffs.

Whether Indy can replicate that turnaround remains to be seen.

There were encouraging signs on Sunday, albeit against a sputtering Dolphins offense that has the league's second-lowest points total (62).

Indy's defense dominated the first 3 ½ quarters, continually pressuring former Colts quarterback Jacoby Brissett and forcing Miami miscues.

Carson Wentz had his best game of the season and, not surprisingly, it came on the same day Jonathan Taylor ran for more than 100 yards for the first time this season. Even the special teams unit forced a turnover that led to points.

This was the way Indianapolis envisioned playing.

"You've got to make sure you understand what is the problem, understand what it is and understand that you've got to take care of it," Leonard said. "You've got to be the professional there. You don't want people to keep talking trash about you, so you've got to find a way to sharpen up."

They did it once.

Now the Colts want to use that same formula as the blueprint for another midseason turnaround.

"At the end of the day, the goal is to win," tight end Mo Alie-Cox said. "We were losing, so guys are going to listen with open ears. We're all professionals. We know what we need to do."

WHAT'S WORKING

Taylor. Last year's top rookie rusher had 16 carries, 103 yards, one TD and an average of 6.4 yards. He did it behind an offensive line missing two starters. Indy needs Taylor to perform that way more consistently.

WHAT NEEDS HELP

Deep throws. Yes, Wentz's limited mobility has forced more short throws the past two weeks. And, yes, two strong defenses forced Indy to throw underneath in Weeks 1 and 2. But Indy needs to go deep more often to open up the running game and score more points.

STOCK UP

Alie-Cox. The former college basketball star caught three passes for 42 yards and two TDs. He came up big, too, when Indy needed him most by wrestling the ball away from a defender to give Indy a 17-point lead.

Hoosiers lose Penix indefinitely to shoulder injury, Tuttle expected to take over

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Indiana quarterback Michael Penix Jr. had his first three seasons end early because of injuries. The Hoosiers remain hopeful Penix won't make it four in a row.

Coach Tom Allen said Monday that the redshirt junior suffered a separated throwing shoulder during Saturday's loss at Penn State. He is out indefinitely and is being listed as week to week.

Jack Tuttle, who replaced Penix for the final two games last season, is expected to take over when the Hoosiers return to action Oct. 16 against No. 11 Michigan State. The Hoosiers (2-3, 0-2 Big Ten) have a bye this week.

"I don't know that you can rule that out at this point," Allen said when asked if Penix would need surgery. "There are some unknowns with the rehab process, surgery is definitely not felt to be necessary at this time. At the same time, we don't know all those answers at this point."

The injury occurred when Penn State linebacker Brandon Smith drove Penix into the ground during the third quarter.

Since returning from a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee, which ended his 2020 season, Penix was completing just 53.7% of his throws and had thrown seven interceptions and four TD passes. He threw three interceptions in each of Indiana's first two losses, with two returned for touchdowns.

Though he showed improvement in a victory at Western Kentucky he had more trouble against Penn State. He went 10 of 22 with 118 yards and one interception before leaving Saturday as Indiana endured its first shutout since 2000.

"The (overall) performance was unacceptable, not up to our standard and we have to get it fixed," Allen said. "It's execution, it's play-making, it's finding ways to get out of a bad call and into a better call. At the end of the day, that's my responsibility. So we've got to make sure the way we performed Saturday night never happens again."

Tuttle went 6 of 12 with 77 yards and also threw an interception.

It's not the first time Tuttle has been in this position, either. He closed out a win over Maryland last season and went 1-1 after becoming the starter, losing to Ole Miss in the Outback Bowl while playing most of the game with a separated throwing shoulder.

"I mentioned in the preseason we felt like we had two starting quarterbacks and on this team," Allen said. "He's highly respected by his teammates and he brings an energy as well. I thought he gave us a spark even Saturday. I have great confidence in him and he has a great quality to always be ready to play whether it's no snaps, one snap or 80 snaps."

Allen also hopes the bye will help Indiana get some key defensive starters including cornerbacks Tiawan Mullen and Reese Taylor and starting safety Raheem Layne, back from injuries.

NOTES: Indiana's running back depth is taking another hit after backup Tim Baldwin decided to enter the transfer portal. Allen said Baldwin is no longer with the team. Baldwin is the second running back who has opted to transfer this season. Sampson James, another backup, decided to play at Purdue in August.

game away early against a Scottsburg team that was playing with a full 11 players for the first time all season. Grote got his first goal less than two minutes in the game off an assist by Sonny Koren and Alvarado Paz followed with a goal in the eighth minute for a quick 2-0 lead.

Eirikkson got his goal off another Koren assist in the 20th minute to push the lead to 3-0 but shortly thereafter Scottsburg goalie Lucas Toppe and teammate Gabe Hines collided while trying to stop a Madison attack. Both players were down nearly 20 minutes — Hines complaining of a head injury and Toppe his shoulder — with both eventually exiting the game.

Despite the two-man advantage, Madison failed to score over the final 20 minutes of the half and led 3-0 at the break. Both Toppe and Hines returned in the second half — with Toppe going into the field — to put Scottsburg back at full strength but it ended up not making a difference although Toppe did score midway through the half to break up the shutout.

Alvarado Paz scored his second goal in the 56th minute and Grote followed with his second in the 71st. Alvarado Paz then created the final goal when he penetrated deep into the Scottsburg defense and kicked the ball back out to Grote, who hammered the ball into the net to complete his hat trick.

The game was just the fourth for Alvarado Paz, who moved to Madison with his family from Honduras just last month. Officially a freshman due to academic credits, the 17-year-old Alvarado Paz has made his presence felt quickly.

"They told me that I had a kid moving in from Honduras and I wasn't sure what to think at first but he has come in and fit right in," Bipes said. "He's fast and strong and skilled and he has really meshed with the other guys. It's great to have him."

Madison outshot Scottsburg 35-3 on the night, including 22-2 on goal, and had 10 corner kicks to the Warriors' one. Drew Forner stopped one shot in goal for the Cubs while Carter Gricius had 14 saves in relief of Toppe.

The win moved Madison into the sectional semifinals where it faced North Harrison, a 3-1 winner over Salem, on Wednesday. The Cubs lost to North Harrison 1-0 last month but should they avenge that loss, the championship game will be on Saturday at 2 p.m.

once we took Montgomery out of the game, we were able to take control of the game."

With the win, the Rebels moved on to face tourney host and two-time defending sectional champion Jac-Cen-Del on Wednesday. The Eagles defeated Milan 5-1 in Tuesday's other opening round match. Switzerland County and South Ripley met in Wednesday's other semifinal with the winners advancing to the championship game slated for 2 p.m. on Saturday.
